SNYDERTOWN BOYS HELD FOR CASHING $300 BOGUS CHECK

Elmer Rose and William Johnson Charged With Getting Big Sum in Scottsdale.

HAD BEEN ARRESTED HERE

Youths Were Given Hearings Before Alderman Fred Munk for Passing Two Forged Drafts; Check Drawn on Scottsdale Savings & Trust Co.

Elmer Rose and William Johnson, Snyder town youths, who were arrested for passing bad checks in this city and discharged after the cases were settled before Alderman Fred Munk Thursday evening, have been arrested by Patrolman Frank Gano of Scottsdale and were scheduled to be given hearings before Justice of the Peace W. M. Kinnel at that place this afternoon. The boys are charged with forging a check for $300 which they cashed at the Scottsdale Trust company. Patrolman Gano is the prosecutor.

The check was passed on the bank about two weeks ago. When it became known the boys had been arrested for passing checks to two merchants, Elmer Rose came to investigate. The checks made out here were compared with the bogus one passed in Scottsdale, and immediately afterwards the youths were apprehended.

The check was cashed by Elmer Rose, the same youth who passed a forged instrument at the stores of Connellsville. Elmer Rose came to investigate. The checks made out here were compared with the bogus one passed in Scottsdale, and immediately afterwards the youths were apprehended.

When the two other banks officially become members of the institution the Union Trust company will have

GOOD SEATS FOR "LEGION FOLLIES" STILL AVAILABLE

If Prospective Purchasers Act Quickly Monday Morning Cast Being Drills in Stage Technique.

While the advance sale of tickets for the "Legion Follies," which is to be produced at the Soloson theatre on next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, has been large and indicates that the people of Connellsville appreciate the opportunity they will have to see an entertainment as good as the productions by professionals, there remain a number of good seats which can be procured at Bissel & Company's drug store on Monday.

Under the skilled direction of the producers, John R. Brown, director, and W. A. O'Brien, stage manager, the cast of the Follies is being drilled to a degree of perfection in the different songs, comedy and dance numbers that is rarely equaled even with the professional companies. At last night's rehearsal Stage Manager O'Brien commenced instruction in stage technique which is all that is needed to give a finish and completeness to the production not possible without the services of a person skilled and experienced as Mr. O'Brien is, in the many details essential to a proper staging. This drill will be continued at all rehearsals yet to be held, it being the intention to omit nothing in the way of painstaking attention to little matters to make the show a pronounced success.

Familiar with the work of the producing team of Mr. Brown and Mr. O'Brien, who are so well qualified to present unusual amateur entertainments, the people of Connellsville have every assurance that the forthcoming production will be all and more than is claimed for it.

NEW YEAR LOUDLY ACCLAIMED HERE; GREETING DAMP

Whistles and Bells, With Crash of Firearms, Create Bedlam of Noise.

The New Year was given a vociferous welcome by Connellsville last night, and while the whistles and bells dominated at midnight, there were some celebrations which lasted into the wee hours. It wasn't all dry, either.

The greeting at some private parties was quite damp, and most of the celebrants went about it openly, in little fear of being disturbed by prohibition officers. Drunks were not real numerous on the streets, however, and the crowds were well behaved.

The coming of 1921 was announced almost 15 minutes before midnight by the blowing of whistles in distant places. Five minutes before the zero hour the whistles on local plants and in the Baltimore & Ohio yards let go, and mingled with this conglomeration of noise was the sound of ringing church bells.

In some parts of the city the greeting sounded like a bombardment. There seemed to be more shooting last night than in many previous years.

Taking courage from the many who laughed at prohibition laws and got out their moist goods, the weather man added a little dampness of his own for the first day of 1921 and sent out a forecast that he might continue his "spree" for two or three days.

The day is being observed by the city banks, all of them being closed.

MANY 1921 AUTO PLATES MISSING; DRIVERS PUZZLED

Police Unable to Inform Them Just What Action to Take.

RUSH AT HARRISBURG

City police are receiving many calls from owners of automobiles asking if it is permissible to drive the machines today under the 1920 licenses. The officers are not able to give anyone permission to do this as the state law requires new license plates to be placed on cars the first day of the new year.

It has been announced that no time extensions would be granted those delinquents in ordering their plates this year, and although the police have not received any direct orders to this effect neither have they been informed to allow any extensions. In other years when time extensions were allowed, the officers always received a telegram announcing that no arrests should be made. The officers pointing out as they have no word to the contrary, it really is their duty to make arrests where 1920 tags are being used. The fact that a car owner has applied for a license does not give him permission to drive it until the plates are placed on the car.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 1.—More than 250,000 motor vehicles, including tractors and trailers, had been licensed for 1921 when the office of the state registrar closed after 1 o'clock this morning. The rush on the first day of 1920 broke all records and the force was busy today trying to clear up the enormous accumulation of mail.

The automobile division is observing the holiday by working on the mail.

YEAR GONE ONE OF STRESS IN NUMEROUS WAYS

Is Marked By Peak in Upward Trend of Prices and Beginning of Decline.

RETURN TO NORMAL BEGUN

Nineteen hundred and twenty, just gone through the door of memory, was a year of many events. It was an era of readjustment, the year seeing much turmoil, the peak of high prices, strikes, and it lived long enough to catch a glimpse of a future of better promise.

The difficult process of getting back to somewhere near normalcy, following a world upheaval which ended two years ago, seemed to pass the crisis in 1920, and indications now point to any changes just before the nation may settle down to peace and enjoyment of life.

Connellsville and the coke region have felt the rise and fall of the waves of time, and thus far has fairly well weathered the storm. The closing months of the year brought indications of a period of considerable industrial depression the length of which none can foretell but over which there is optimism.

The city was caught in the railroad tie-up in April. Local trainmen were involved in the nation-wide walkout but the situation never became serious here.

During the latter part of the closing months, the activities of a fraying gang of fire brands aroused the citizens of the county. Before two weeks, Frank Komar of Westmoreland county, and Albert Smith, a youth residing at Fairhope, near Belle Vernon, were arrested, property valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars was laid in ruins. An entire troop of state police was detailed to ferret out the guilty person or persons and a reward of $5,000 was offered by the county commissioners, together with $1,000 by the Perry township school board.

The year saw five changes in the pastorships of as many churches here—the Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, Trinity Lutheran, Trinity Reformed and United Presbyterian.

Many well known citizens died, including the oldest resident, Mrs. Mary A. Dunlop, at advanced age of almost 90 years.

Smallpox broke out in the summer, cases being discovered at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A., which was quarantined. The city was finally forced to erect a pest house in Connellsville township to take care of patients and bill for more than $3,000.

A number of large real estate deals were negotiated, including sale of six blocks in business section of Crawford avenue.

The properties which changed hands were the Yough House, the Kurtz property, occupied by the Connellsville Drug company, the Morton property, occupied by the stores of J. R. Davidson and Crowley-McIntire company, the Munson building, the Bloch property and the Barnes property.

Valuation of city property increased million dollars in three years, according to the triennial compilation by City Assessor E. T. Lyne.

A feature of the year in religious circles was the canvass of funds for the Interchurch World Movement. In a single afternoon, April 25, $15,000 was subscribed and subsequent subscriptions ran the total up to approximately $200,000, including a fund of over $60,000 for an addition to the First Christian church for Sunday school purposes.

(A brief resume of events of the year locally will be found on pages six and seven.)

"WEEK OF PRAYER" IS NOT ABANDONED; HELD LATE IN YEAR

More General Practice of Churches Now Is to Hold the Special Service Preceding Easter.

According to the statements of a number of pastors of the churches of the city, the omission of the week of prayer services during the first week of the year is not an abandonment of the custom, but rather a change in the time and method of its observance.

With respect to the churches of the city generally and especially the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. B. W. Hutchinson, the pastor, this morning gave the following explanation:

"The reasons why so many churches no longer observe the first week of the year with special meetings are varied. One of the most important reasons for letting go of the custom, which prevailed rather widely a quarter of a century ago, is the increasing emphasis being placed on the pre-Easter services in most churches.

"Personally I have not held special meetings in January for 15 years past, but have every year conducted an evangelistic campaign just preceding Easter. This is the advice of the General Conference of the church and the custom of our pastors. Another strong argument in favor of the Easter season is that the weather is more mild, as the January meetings are often seriously hindered by the severe cold and icy streets."

The two men were attacked by several sailors and were forced to fight their way to a telephone. Several police responding to the call had difficulty in dispersing the mob of sailors which had gathered. Many plate glass windows near the scene of the riot were smashed and three automobiles were overturned.

Forty newsboys of the city were guests of John Kestner, news dealer, just given in the second annual banquet given by Mr. Kestner for the newsboys, the scene of the festivities being at the Star restaurant. To say the boys enjoyed the feast and two hours of fun following in the swimming pool and gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. is putting it mildly.

Captain E. Dunn and M. B. Pryce were also guests of Mr. Kestner and gave short talks to the boys. The banquets were ready with generous aplomb at the close of each.

In the basketball game at the Y. M. C. A. the team captained by Robert Smith was victorious over that led by William Ellis. The youthful basketballers ate so much they were not able well to locate the basket at the score, 3-2, would indicate.

OUR NEW YEAR WISH

May 1921 be more than a Happy New Year for you May it be your Best Year, yielding you unstinted measure of every good and worth while thing you may strive to achieve or deserve to attain

FACING THE NEW YEAR.

There is every reason why we should face this year with courage and hopefulness, the year which begins today. We have every assurance that we can so face it and that it will be a happy and fruitful year. If we are willing to serve faithfully, if we are less concerned about our rights and privileges than we are anxious to perform our duties, and if we retain in our lives and manifest in our relations with our fellow men the spirit which we allowed to possess our souls during the Christmas tide.

Disturbed as we may have been at times by some of the evidences of the greatest that has prevailed to the past year, we have meantime witnessed the operation of counteracting influences and the slow but steady growth of a strong public sentiment which is unmistakably tending to assure us that there is to be clearing up of the clouds and darkness with which we have been encompassed, that God's will is being done, and that all will yet be right with the world if we but keep the right deal justly and walk humbly.

But we must not at the threshold of the new year, nor at any time during its progress, permit ourselves to become indifferent to the perils that still confront us. We are unmindful of our obligations as exemplars of good citizenship or neglectful of our opportunities to strengthen and uphold the forces and factors that make for righteousness, justice and law enforcement in community, state and nation.

Encouraging as it is to note the swelling tide of public opinion that is rising in irrepressible might against the continuance of the evils and abuses which threaten the foundations of our most cherished institutions, we must not allow ourselves to be lulled into a false security or contentedly fold our hands and sit idly by while there remains so much for every loyal, conscientious, country-loving citizen to do.

If we, therefore, bring to the new year a faithful and sacrificing service in the interests of good government, genuine Americanism and the establishment of a just relationship between those who labor and produce and those who employ and consume, and hold steadfast to our purpose, to do well our part as loyal citizens and good neighbors, 1921 will not only be happy and fruitful in our individual lives, but it will witness an advance in civic and national righteousness and material prosperity and progress unparalleled in our history.

To strive to attain these things is surely worthy of the best that is in us.

The weatherman is the first to violate the orders from Washington to make this a strictly dry day.

The arson school does not appear to have observed a vacation.

The Baptist brethren have given a demonstration of church financing that may make some other churches jealous but better perhaps, stir them to emulation.

During the past year Dan Cupid evidently had firm faith that two can accomplish more in the direction of reducing H. C. L. than one.

The verdicts of juries still hold surprises. Sometimes the biggest are for those who least expected them.

1921 is the year of your best service. It will also be your happiest.

Tomorrow will be the second of the new year but it will not be too late to start it right by being in your accustomed place during the church services.

Don't be satisfied with wishing people a Happy New Year. Make it that kind for as many people as you can.

Public Opinion has not been summoned as a juror but it is keeping close tabs on the progress of the administration of justice these days.

If you don't perform any better service or discharge your duties more faithfully than you did last year, 1921 will be a new year only in name for you.

A Princess of Lars

Concentrating my mind upon the massive rock I hurried the blue thought waves against it. In breathless expectancy I waited, when finally the great door moved, softly toward me and slid quietly to one side. One after the other the remaining mighty portals opened at my command and I stepped forth into the darkness, free, but little better off than we had been before, other than that we had full stomachs.

Hastening away from the shadows of the formidable pile I made for the first crossroad, intending to strike the central turnpike as quickly as possible. This I reached about morning and entering the first enclosure I came to I searched for some evidence of a habitation.

There were low rambling buildings of concrete barred with heavy iron-able doors, and no amount of hammering and hallooing brought any response. Worn and exhausted from sleeplessness I threw myself upon the ground, commanding Woola to stand guard.

Some time later I was awakened by his frightful growlings and opened my eyes to see three red Martians standing a short distance from me and covering me with their rifles.

"I am unarmed and no enemy," I hastened to explain. "I have been a prisoner among the green men and am on my way to Zodanga. All I ask is food and rest for myself and my chiot and the proper directions for reaching my destination."

They lowered their rifles and advanced pleasantly toward me, flinging their right hands upon my left shoulder, after the manner of their custom of salute, and asking me many questions about myself and my wanderings. They then took me to the house of one of them which was only a short distance away.

They were the personification of cordiality and hospitality and I spent several days with them, resting and rejuvenating from my long and arduous experiences.

When I was ready to depart they furnished me with a small domestic bull, such as is used for saddle purposes by all red Martians. The animal is about the size of a horse and quite gentle, but in color and shape an exact replica of his huge and fierce cousin of the wilds.

The brothers had supplied me with a redish' all with which I anointed my entire body and one of them cut my hair, which had grown quite long, in the prevailing fashion of the time, square at the back and banged in front, so that I could have passed anywhere upon Mars as a full-fledged red Martian. My mental and ornaments were also renewed in the style of a Zodangan gentleman, attached to the house of Ptor, which was the family name of my benefactors.

CHAPTER XIII.

An Alac Scout for Zodanga.

As I proceeded on my journey toward Zodanga many strange and interesting sights arrested my attention, and at the several fortresses where I stopped I learned a number of new and instructive things concerning the methods and manners of Mars.

The water which supplies the fountains of Mars is collected in immense underground reservoirs of either pole from the melting ice caps, and pumped through long conduits to the various populated centers. Instead of flooding the surface of the fields, and thus wasting immense quantities of water by evaporation, the precious liquid is carried underground through a network of small pipes directly to the roots of the vegetation. The crops upon Mars are always uniform, for there are no droughts, no rains, no high winds, and no insects, or destroying birds.

On this trip I tasted the first meat
I had eaten since leaving Earth—large, juicy steaks and chops from the well-fed domestic animals of the farms. Also I enjoyed luscious fruits and vegetables, but not a single article of food which was exactly similar to anything on Earth.

At a second stop I met some highly cultivated people of the noble class and while in conversation we chanced to speak of Hellum. One of the older men had been there on a diplomatic mission several years before and spoke with regret of the conditions which seemed destined ever to keep these two countries at war.

"Hellum," he said, "rightly boasts the most beautiful women of Mars, and of all her treasures this wondrous daughter of Mars Kajak, Dajah Thoris, is the most exquisite flower."

"Why," he added, "the people really worship the ground she walks upon and adore her face as that ill-starred expedition all Hellum has been draped in mourning."

"That our ruler should have attacked the disabled fleet as it was returning to Hellum was but another of his awful blunders which I fear will sooner or later compel Zodanga to elu-cate a war upon his place."

"Even now, though our victorious armies are surrounding Hellum, the people of Zodanga are eating their displeasure, for the war is not a popular one, since it is not based on right or justice. Our forces look advantageously of the absence of the principal fleet of Hellum for their search for the princess, and we have been able easily to reduce the city to a sorry plight."

"And what, think you, may have been the fate of the princess, Dajah Thoris?" I asked as casually as possible.
